NCCAA AND MEMBER SCHOOL
Begin Circle of Influence

I first heard of the National Christian College Athletic Association (NCCAA) and its member institution, Indiana Wesleyan University (IWU), through a prison ministry that was taking place in my hometown of Mansfield, Ohio. IWU’s soccer team came over to Mansfield when I was a sophomore in high school to minister to the inmates. My family housed players from the team. At that time I met the head men’s soccer coach, who would begin making a tremendous impact on my life.

I maintained contact with the coach throughout my junior and senior years of high school as IWU would continue their ministry at the prison playing against the inmates. Although I had offers from several other colleges, I wanted to obtain a degree from an NCCAA Division I Christian college. Because of the impact the IWU team had on me, I chose to attend Indiana Wesleyan University and played on the men’s varsity soccer team.

However, this was also a time in my life that I was facing some struggles. I had begun to let my ego get the best of me and began a drug addiction. My drug use began when I was a junior in high school and remained until I was a sophomore at IWU. However, my coach continued to witness to me and be a role model for me to follow.

Even though I had always known Christ as my personal Savior, I was a lukewarm Christian at best (“So then, because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will vomit you out of My mouth.” – Revelation 3:16). Not only did my grades suffer as I began my education at IWU, but so did my physical conditioning level and playing time for the soccer team. My caliber of play was not what it could have been, and I knew it. Most of all, my spiritual conditioning was on the path to eternal destruction. I was not able to give my best – to my education, my team, my coach, my family, nor my God.

My sophomore year was one of life-changing proportions. The NCCAA and IWU helped me to turn my life around through the emphasis of Christ through athletics. I played in the NCCAA national soccer tournament at Lee University in Tennessee. The NCCAA had invited Michelle Akers Stahl of the USA national women’s soccer team to speak at the national tournament banquet. Her message and testimony helped me realize where I was spiritually and to determine where I wanted to go with my life and career. I came to realize that I didn’t have to take drugs or drink to play at the top level. For some reason I had thought that the two went hand in hand. As I recommitted my life to God, I began to excel in the various areas of my life, including athletics. My junior year at IWU brought another chance to play at the NCCAA national soccer tournament at LeTourneau University in Texas, followed by completing my college career at the NAIA regional my senior year, receiving honors both years.

The Lord allowed my experiences to shape who I am and what I do today. Following graduation I pursued a field of substance abuse counseling in which I received certification at the CCDC I level to complement my bachelor of science degree in psychology from IWU. For three years following my graduation, I served as a primary counselor for alcoholics and addicts in a detoxification unit in a hospital while coaching soccer at the high school level. Although I was coaching, I missed the NCCAA and the Christian college environment.

Knowing the impact the NCCAA had on my life, I began searching the NCCAA website and found a job with an NCCAA member institution, Greenville College, where I could enjoy serving as both head men’s soccer coach and substance abuse counselor. God has certainly led me here, allowed me to use my experiences to help others, and topped it off by allowing me to use athletics to impact the lives of student-athletes, hopefully continuing the circle in my life.

Will you assist the NCCAA in their ministry? It made a difference in my life and now I am continuing the circle by impacting the lives of my student-athletes. Your prayers and financial gifts make a difference.

Jameson Ramirez is the latest addition to the Greenville men’s soccer coaching staff. Having joined in 2010, Ramirez will be serving as an assistant coach for the men’s reserve team. His principle duties will include working with the goalkeepers as well as providing general technical and logistical assistance to reserve team head coach Robert Johnson. This will be Ramirez’s first year coaching.

Ramirez graduated with honors from Greenville College in 2007 with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology. In August of 2010, Ramirez earned his master’s degree in sociology from Southern Illinois University Edwardsville.

Born and raised in the Central American country of Guatemala, Ramirez started playing soccer (or ‘futbol’ as it more commonly referred to) from the early age of three. As a player Ramirez was brought up in the reserve team system of Guatemalan first division team Coban Imperial, earning his way to a spot on the first team. In 2002 he chose to come to the United States for school where he eventually played high school and club ball in Harrisburg, PA. In 2003, Ramirez joined the ranks of the Greenville College men’s soccer team where he successfully played several seasons, assuming captancy of the team in 2006 and garnered several accolades that included team all-conference selections.
The Greenville College men's soccer team has resumed training for another successful season. During the 2009 season, the team qualified for its fourth National Christian College Athletic Association national tournament where the team placed seventh in the nation en route to 16 wins which tied the 1994 squad for the most in Greenville College history.

In addition, the 2009 national tournament appearance was the third consecutive national tournament for the Panther program which qualified for the NCCAA national tournament in 2007 and the NCAA Division III national tournament in 2008.

The 2010 Panthers will be led by the contributions of three two-time members of the St. Louis Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SLIAC) all-conference team. Following the 2009 season, Daniel Taylor, a junior of Village Ridge, Mo., earned a spot on the SLIAC first team. Senior Terrance Cosby of Jefferson City, Mo., was a second team choice, and junior David Dunlop of Coleraine, Northern Ireland, was chosen as an honorable mention pick.

Taylor was the third-leading point scorer on the 2009 squad with eight goals and 10 assists for 26 points. He was fourth on the team in goals scored and second in assists.

Cosby provides a senior presence on a defense which limited its opposition to 1.16 goals per game last season. Cosby tied for fifth on the team with five goals scored and fifth in points with 11. He posted one assist.

Dunlop finished deadlocked as the top goal-scorer in 2009 with 15 goals and was second on the team with 36 points. He provided six assists, which was fourth on the team.

The Panthers concluded the 2009 season with an overall record of 16-8-2 (7-0-1 SLIAC) and won the regular season conference championship. They placed second in the conference tournament, losing a 1-0 game to Webster in the championship after defeating Principia on penalty kicks in the semifinal.

Brian McMahon, who serves as head coach, is returning for his 10th season after obtaining his first SLIAC coach of the year award in 2009. He joined former coaches Tom Stonebraker and Richard Huston as the third Greenville College men's soccer coach to receive the award. McMahon places second on the Panther soccer all-time victories list with a record of 108-72-22. His winning percentage of .589 places second among Greenville coaches with two or more seasons as head coach.

Over the past eight seasons, the Panthers have won 104 games, giving them the most wins over an eight-year period in the history of Greenville College men's soccer which celebrates its 50th anniversary as a varsity sport in 2010. In addition, the Panthers have recorded six consecutive seasons with a record over .600 which is also a first.

The Panthers begin their 2010 season on Wednesday, Sept. 1, at home against Lindenwood Belleville in a 5 p.m. kickoff.

John M. Strahl Athletic Complex
A 14-acre area just one mile south of the main campus, the complex was dedicated to former coach and athletic director John M. Strahl in April 2004. The complex includes Francis Field, Lady Panther Field, Robert E. Smith Field, S.W. Andrews Fields, and the Briner Training Center.

Francis Field
Francis Field consists of separate home venues for football and soccer. The Panther football field was completed in 1987 just before the Panther football team began their first season. The stadium can seat up to 2,000 fans. Greenville also sports an all-weather track which was completed in 1985. The soccer field was completed in the mid-1960’s. Recent improvements have included installation of new Bermuda grass, team benches on the east side of the field, a new kicking wall, bleachers seating 500, and a new press box.

Lady Panther Field
Lady Panther Field, home of the softball team, boasts of a skinned infield, 200 foot fence enclosing the field, brick dug-outs and ample practice space. With its new scoreboard, new press box, new outfield fence, revamped dugouts, and sound system, the facility is one of the most enjoyable places to play softball in the conference.

Robert E. Smith Field
Dedicated to Greenville’s ninth president on October 12, 1985, the Panther baseball field is one of the best around. It’s located next to the football and soccer fields in the John M. Strahl Athletic Complex only one mile south of campus.

S.W. Andrews Fields
Located within the John M. Strahl Athletic Complex, S.W. Andrews Fields consist of two 80-yard by 120-yard irrigated soccer fields and a 100-space parking lot. The facility was completed in 2006 to serve as the primary practice facility for the men’s and women’s soccer programs.

Briner Training Center
The Briner Training Center houses indoor practice facilities for baseball, softball, and track and field. The 12,000 square foot facility was named in honor of Dr. Robert A Briner during the 2004-05 school year. The interior features batting cages, an artificial turf flooring, and an area for pitching.

Fitness Training Center
The fitness center includes an indoor lap pool, cardio equipment, weight training machines, free weights and aerobics room. A sauna and jacuzzi are available in the men’s and women’s locker rooms.

E.G. Burritt Gymnasium
The original home court of the Panther basketball teams was built in 1915 and named for Greenville’s third president, Eldon G. Burritt. This gym doesn’t see the action it used to, but it still serves a purpose. Features include a climbing wall, training equipment, and a classroom.

H.J. Long Gymnasium
Greenville built the historic H. J. Long Gymnasium in 1961. Named for the college’s fifth president, the gym seats 2,000 enthusiastic Panther fans as they cheer for the volleyball and men’s and women’s basketball teams. The building also houses locker rooms, training facilities, and coaching and administrative offices.

Glen and Maxine Crum Recreation Center
Completed in 1993 as part of Greenville’s 100th Anniversary and named for generous Greenville donors, Glen and Maxine Crum, in 1998, the Recreation Center serves a wide variety of purposes. The building houses athletic offices as well as flexible facilities that can be converted into two tennis courts, batting cages, basketball courts, volleyball courts. It also contains an indoor walking track and serves as a training facility for multiple athletic teams.

Scott J. Burgess Tennis Complex
The GC tennis complex includes six courts. The first two courts were built in the 1940’s, the second two in 1973, and the last two were completed in 1995. The courts were dedicated by Stan Smith in November 1974 in memory of Scott J. Burgess, a GC basketball player who died while still a student. The men’s and women’s Panther tennis teams are not the only teams to call these courts home. The local high school teams use them as well.

Faith Based Programs

One of the distinctive elements that sets Greenville apart as a college is its effort to be a campus that takes seriously the Christian faith. The men's and women's soccer programs are Christian programs, seeking to attract top-level players who are also committed to embracing Christian principles for living and integrating those principles into all that we do on and off the field.

A Great Level Of Play

At Greenville we are searching for players who choose to be part of our program because of the quality they see here, the excitement that surrounds the program on campus, and the chance to have a great college soccer experience in a Christian environment. There is a standard of excellence in the program that isn’t limited in terms of its vision to being a “Division III” team. Greenville seeks to excel and compete at the national level in Division III. Over the past few years Greenville has competed against several nationally ranked collegiate programs of all divisions as well as taking trips to compete overseas against professional clubs from the Netherlands, Germany, England, Austria, Belgium, and the Czech Republic.
